Languages that permit this style allow a developer to minimize or eliminate side effects by describing what the program must accomplish in terms of the problem domain, rather than fully describing how to accomplish it as a sequence of the programming language primitives (the how being left up to the language's implementation). Declarative programming is in contrast with imperative programming, which implements algorithms in explicit steps. Just like in the functional programming paradigm, mutating variables does not conform to the declarative paradigm because it implies an execution order which is imperative. == Selected filmography == The original idea for a musical set on board an ocean liner came from producer...
